NPR Academic Minute Radio Broadcast: 9-21-2018

Gender Differences in the Changing Norms for Coupling: Some Singles Are Still Stigmatized

Hilda Speicher, Ph.D. (Albertus Magnus College)

Xavier F. Amador, Ph.D. (Henry Amador Anosognosia Center & Univ. of Utah)

Note. At time of initial broadcast Dr. Amador's affiliation: State Univ. of New York

Morality by Lee's Marital Status

Pattern of results across both samples are similar, current sample actually somewhat harsher on Single Lee. (Current sample not sig., /power issue)

The Current Sample is Harsher on Male Lee Morality

No Sig. Interaction Effects for Lee's Gender & Marital Status on Morality

For the Current Sample: being single slightly reduces morality ratings for Female Lee, but not for Male Lee. (not sig.)

Social Competence by Marital Status

The Current Sample is Harsher on Male Lee Social Competence

Interaction Effects of Lee's Gender & Marital Status on Social Competence

For the Current Sample: For Female Lee being single reduces Competence ratings, but it doesn't for Male Lee (sig.)

Attitudes Toward Single Lee's Marital Prospects

The Current Sample is more likely to believe Lee should marry and will marry.

Direct Measure of Stigma

